Palazzo Sasso, Ravello

Dating back to the 12th century, the mountainside building that houses this hotel was part of the aristocratic quarter of Ravello in the Middle Ages. Today, Palazzo Sasso's 43 rooms are filled with 18th- and 19th-century furniture. The highlight is a meal at the Michelin two-star Rossellinis, where chef Pino Lavarra makes the most of local ingredients to turn out dishes like hand-rolled giant squid ravioli filled with crab. Two years ago, the owners bought a waterside villa and converted it into another retreat called Sasso by the Sea. The chic space has several terraces for sunbathing, a restaurant and bar and activities such as kayaking and snorkeling. A free shuttle takes guests back and forth. Rooms start at $325; 39-089/818-181; palazzosasso.com.
